

SOC265 Peace and Social Justice

(3 credit hours)

Course Syllabus

Course Description

This course is designed to provide an introduction and importance of social justice in the helping professions via case studies of relevant world events. Students will understand how social justice has informed society through peace and justice studies; restorative justice; and reconciliations practices. An exploration of hunger, poverty, and economic/resource inequity will be included as foundational to the study of violence and aggression. This course is intended to offer students a well-rounded view of conflict and alternative means of resolution.

Course Learning Outcomes

By the end of this course, you will be able to:

1. To examine social justice structures in their geographical, historical, psychological, and social contexts
2. To examine the importance of social justice and how it differs between and within cultures
3. To develop interpretive and critical reading skills and writing ability
4. To promote critical thinking skills through reading, discussion, and writing about social justice issues
5. To research supporting sources for further opinions about the topics

Prerequisites/Corequisites

No prerequisites required.

Required Textbook(s) and Resources

This course has no textbook. We will be using a variety of sources and the SOC265 Library Webpage to engage the latest data in the field of peace and social justice.

Be sure to also review the weekly Explore sections for additional library or web resources. For access to databases, research help, and writing tips, visit the Tiffin University Library.

Time Commitment

Effective time management is possibly the single most critical element to your academic success. To do well in this online class you should plan your time wisely to maximize your learning through the completion of readings, discussions, and assignments. Because of our accelerated, seven-week term, TU online courses are designed with the expectation that you dedicate a little over six (6) hours per credit hour to course activities and preparation each week. For example, for successful completion of a three-credit, seven-week online course you should reserve roughly twenty (20) hours per week.

To help plan your time and keep on track toward successful course completion, note the distinctive rhythm of assignment due dates:

1. All times assume Eastern Time (GMT-4).
2. Weeks begin at 12:00 a.m. ET on Monday and end at 11:55 p.m. ET on Sunday.
3. Unless otherwise noted, initial assignments or discussion posts are due by 11:55 p.m. ET on Wednesdays.
4. Additional assignments or follow-up discussion posts are due by 11:55 p.m. ET on Saturdays, and
5. Major assignments and reflections are typically due by 11:55 p.m. ET on Sundays.

Learning Activities

The categories of assignments for this class will be discussion forums, short writing assignments, and a final project. The discussion forums will be a place to explore relevant data in peace and social justice, and review what your classmates are investigating. The weekly writing assignments will give you a more detailed opportunity to look at data, explore new ideas, and critically think about your topics. Your final project will be a culmination of these exercises and highlight your mastery of the course learning outcomes.

Tips for Success

Successful online learning requires a good deal of self-discipline and self-direction. As seekers of the truth, we should be willing to challenge and review one another's academic work in a spirit of respectful comradery and constructiveness. Your course is a place for you to stretch and grow as you benefit from the expertise, knowledge, experience and diverse perspectives of your instructor and peers. Constructive feedback will challenge you to stretch your own thinking, thereby expanding your knowledge, understanding and application.

To get the most out of your learning experience, you should actively engage (participate) in ALL course activities. Course elements are arranged chronologically. To complete a week, simply work your way "down the page" through all of the course materials and activities.
